THINGS PLEASING TO OGDEN.

There is renewed talk of the construction of a railroad from Ogden into Idaho and the northwest. In connection with the sale of the Emery tract of land on Raft river in southern Idaho and northern Utah, comes the story that the road from Saline, on the Ogden-Lucine cut-off, is to be built the coming year, work to be started in the spring.

The railroad officials have been reticent in regard to the proposed new road, and even Kruttschnitt has refused to make any positive statement as to its early construction, but evidence accumulates tending to prove that the Harriman people have decided in favor of building, but are holding back information until they obtain a right of way from Saline to Rupert, Idaho.

As this paper has shown, the route is a most desirable one for a connection with the Union Pacific in the handling of traffic into the northwest. A train starting from Green River, Wyoming, running over the Union Pacific to Ogden, the Southern Pacific to Saline, and the proposed road through the Raft river country to Rupert, and from Rupert by the cut-off now building, to Bliss, could make the distance in less time than a similar train, starting at the same point and going by way of Granger, over the Short Line to Bliss.

One important advantage in favor of the Ogden route would be the low grades as compared with the Oregon Short Line through Kemmerer, Montpelier and Pocatello. Engineers have stated that one-third more tonnage in either direction could be pulled over the Ogden route with the power now employed on the Short Line. So it is reasonable to presume that eventually the Saline-to-Rupert road will be built.

A Salt Lake paper now concedes that the road will be constructed and, in a lengthy article on the purchase of the Emery land by the Pacific Land & Water company, says:

The deal for the "Emery" tract is the inception of an activity which means the expenditure of a great amount of money and the opening up of new country of many thousands of acres. The Idaho lands are watered by the Raft river, Clear creek, and smaller streams having their sources in the Raft River mountains. And through this country a new line of railroad is to be built. The final survey has just been completed for the new line from Saline, Utah, on the Lucine cut-off, crossing the Promontory, and traversing the Raft River valley.

It is said that work on this line will start in the spring; that the very heaviest steel will be used in its building, and that the construction throughout will be of the highest class. It will materially shorten distance in this country and afford valuable transportation facilities to a remarkably fertile country which has heretofore been handicapped because of the want of a railroad.

The Pacific Land & Water company will develop all of this country along liberal lines. A part of the property adjoins the claims of the Century and Suzanna Mining companies. A dam and power plant is to be built in this vicinity and a townsite laid out. In the immediate vicinity are thousands of acres of land suitable for grazing, with many springs of fine water. The company also owns a large body of fine pine timber. Here sawmills are to be erected shortly and the lumber prepared for market.

The construction of this road from Saline and the development of a great body of virgin soil along the route would greatly benefit Ogden by making a new empire tributary to this city and materially adding to the importance of Ogden as a railroad center. With the completion of a line from Saline north, the Southern Pacific road from here to Promontory Point on the cut-off, where Saline is situated, would be double-tracked, so that trains going over the new route would be diverted at this point.

This is only one of several important developments west of here which promise to add to the commercial importance of this city, and, looking forward to the consummation of those improvements, Ogden can be said to be at the beginning of an era of great prosperity.

CHRISTMAS IN OGDEN.

Our readers we wish a Merry Christmas; yes, and a Merry Christmas to all the people of Ogden and surrounding country. Our most earnest hope is that in this city tonight there will be none without Christmas cheer; that the old and young, without exception, will be free from penury or woe. Given the power, we would inspire in the children and the older folks renewed hopes of sweet contentment.

The Christmas spirit is a beautiful one, and the one regret is that the same kindness of heart and purity of purpose do not pervade our lives the year through; but are we not growing good in that direction? We believe there has been more real charity shown this Christmas time than ever in the history of Ogden—more people, without ostentation, have given freely of their means to the humblest than ever before. The Standard has had repeated calls from men and women, inquiring after those in need, and all this kindness has been extended without one thought of publicity on the part of the givers or the least desire to be recognized.

DECEMBER ADVANCE.

"Advance," the monthly magazine issued by the Utah Industrial school, in its December number, displays much ability in composition and printing. If the school continues to produce a monthly of such merit, it will be but a short time when the newspapers will be reaching after the youngsters who display so much literary and mechanical genius.

JUST FOR FUN

Faithful to His Trust.

I was waiting near a factory building for my friend to come down when I noticed a small fellow sitting in one corner of the hall holding a large thick sandwich. He eyed the sandwich lovingly for a long time then he carefully lifted off the top slice of bread took out a piece of dill pickle, ate it and replaced all as before. In a few seconds he again extracted a piece of pickle and a piece of meat and replaced the top. Again and again the performance was repeated, until all the pickle and almost all the meat was gone, the sandwich, however, appearing intact as in the beginning.

 "Why don't you eat your sandwich and not pick at it in that way?"
 "Why," he answered, looking up with great innocence, "it ain't my sandwich."—Woman's Home Companion.

A Misconception.

English Girl—You American Girls have not got healthy complexions as we have. I cannot understand why our noblemen take a fancy to your white faces.
 American Girl—It isn't our white faces that attract them, my dear; it's our greenbacks.—Exchange.

There's a Reason.

I'll work no more for that man Donlan.
 "An' why?"
 "Sure, 'tis on account av a remark he made."
 "An' what was that?"
 "Says he, 'Casey,' says he, 'ye're discharged.'—Sketch.

Some Comfort.

"Our romance is different."
 "I suppose he tells you that you are the only girl he has ever loved?"
 "No, but he does tell me that I am the only girl he has ever loved this near Christmas."—Kansas City Journal.

What They Needed.

Mrs. Shiftless—There! I've hung up the children's stockings. I wonder what Santa Claus will bring?
 Mrs. Cutting—Well, if he's at all observing he'll bring some darned cotton and needles!—Life.

A Frequent Inaccuracy.

"The man's own words prove him a prevaricator," said Mr. Quibbles.
 "In what way?"
 "He writes me an insulting letter and signs it 'Yours respectfully.'—Washington Star.

Serves Him Right.

Wherein They Differ.

Her—When a man starts to talk he never stops to think.
 Him—And when a woman starts she never thinks to stop.—Life.

Mamma's Little Helper.

"Say," asks the small boy, sliding into the parlor while the gentleman caller waits for his mother, the handsome widow, "are you thinkin' of marrin' mamma?"
 "Why—er—I don't know, Willie. Why do you ask, my little man?"
 "Cause if you ain't I can go outdoors and ride my bicycle an' play ball with the fellers my age; but if you are I got to stay inside an' play with a lot of 'kid things.'—Judge.

Silent Departure.

Mrs. Smith was engaging a new servant and sat facing the latest applicant.
 "I hope," she said, "that you had no angry words with your last mistress before leaving."
 "Oh, dear, no, mum; none whatever," was the reply, with a toss of her head. "While she was having her bath I just locked the bathroom door, took all my things and went away as quiet as possible."—Argonaut.

An Observer.

A Wisconsin schoolboy contributed the following to the column of school news in the local paper:
 "Laugh and the world laugh with you. Laugh again and you laugh alone.—The first time it is the teacher's joke. The second joke is your own."—Judge.

Reason Enough.

Mrs. Newlywed (weeping)—Henry, I am sure I have grounds for a divorces! I am positive that you have deceived me.

Mr. Newlywed—What in the world do you mean? What have I done to arouse such a suspicion?
 Mrs. Newlywed (weeping harder)—I—I saw a memorandum in your pocket this morning to—to buy some new ribbons for your typewriter.—Judge.

Value of a Reputation.

"Why," exclaimed the astonished court, "the prisoner has admitted his guilt, and yet you find a verdict of not guilty?"

"If your honor please," explained the foreman, "with due deference to you, this jury knows this man better than the court does. We have decided not to believe him under oath. We don't think he is guilty, even if he swears to it."—Newark Star.

The Battery.

There had been trouble in the O'Hagan household, and O'Hagan had the word of sympathy when he next met his neighbor.
 "T is not much of a team ye make, ye and yer wolfe," said O'Hagan.
 "An' that's where ye're wrong," said O'Hagan. "Tis the golme team we make entirely. Me wolfe pitches an' Oi catches."—Puck.

Practical.

"Did your polar researches enable you to discover anything of practical value?"
 "I should say so," replied the explorer. "They were the means of locating some gilt-edged lecture contracts."—Washington Star.

CHRISTIAN SORESEN DIES OF PARALYSIS

Christian Hans Sorensen died at 10:30 last night. Mr. Sorensen was 77 years of age and succumbed to a stroke of paralysis at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Peterson, 2038 Madison avenue. He was born December 18, 1832, at Aarhus, Denmark, and joined the Mormon church forty-five years ago, coming to Utah in 1872. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Nora Hammond, Miss Sine Sorensen of Idaho and Mrs. Mary Peterson of Ogden, two sons, Joseph and Christian Sorensen of Idaho and eighteen grandchildren. Sorensen was a member of the High Priests Quorum of the Ogden Stake, and until a few months ago resided at Huntsville, moving recently to Ogden to be near his daughter. He was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Funeral announcement will be made later.

CHRISTMAS BANQUET

"Did you have a good time—say get out of here—were we did," thus spoke Jack Childs, of the Badcon pharmacy last night—we mean this morning early, just about the time Santa Claus arrived back at the pole after his all-night session.
 "Say, fellows, I honestly have to go home—you see—you see—that new baby girl may be in need of a conveyance in order to lull her to sleep by this time—so you see there is a reason!" The above sounded to the writer as if it may have been spoken by Mr. W. W. Brainard, and upon investigation it was found to be that gentleman.
 Mr. A. R. McIntyre, proprietor of the Badcon pharmacy, gave all of his employees a banquet last night, starting at midnight and lasting until—?—, to show his appreciation of their services and as a Xmas gift. The banquet was held at the Elite Cafe and was served in five courses, after cigarettes and coffee had been served, Mr. McIntyre was presented with a silk umbrella in token of the esteem of his employees.

 The following were present and reported the time of their lives: Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wiggin, Miss Beatrice Hamill, Messrs. H. M. Butler, H. H. Boyd, O. W. Beauman, W. W. Brainard, J. L. Childs, Newell Mills and A. R. McIntyre.

CHARMING OPERA GOWN.

The above sketch was made at a recent opera performance from a gown worn by a well-known Quaker City belle. The foundation was gold satin, with overlaid of self-toned chiffon cloth. The decorative bodice was trimmed with gold-embroidered ornaments over shoulders, directly in front and at back, where closing was made. These ornaments, the round neck and top of skirt were outlined with a narrow band of jet and gold passementerie.
